YOU CHOOSE...

MARINE ENGINEER

The Engine Room Department falls under the overall charge of the Master but with day-to-day immediate duties the 2nd Engineers are directly involved in engine maintenance and duties are assigned to engine room ratings and priorities according to the Chief's requirements.

DECK OFFICER

The Second Mate assists other officers as directed and has immediate responsibility for the regular maintenance of emergency survival equipment including lifeboats and life rings.

They are also responsible for the ship's navigation and for maintaining charts and monitoring the navigation equipment on the bridge.

The good news is that the Training Programme is fully funded by North Star and they will provide accommodation for trainees who live outwith the area. We also pay you a very competitive salary throughout the cadetship.

YOUR TRAINING

The first phase of your training will include a range of short courses on Basic Sea Survival, Fire Fighting and First Aid – the entry level training required for your first time at sea. Your first year will also include a portfolio of work developed at your chosen college.

YEAR 2

YOUR COLLEGE

The three-year training involves time at sea as well as training at Glasgow Nautical College, North Atlantic Fisheries College in Shetland, or Banff and Buchan College in Fraserburgh. All three colleges offer excellent training and support throughout your cadetship.

YEAR 3

YOUR QUALIFICATION

Once you have completed your course, including written and oral exams, you will be awarded with a Certificate of Competency for either Deck Officer or Marine Engineer Officer, depending on the course chosen.

...YOUR CAREER

"The North Star Cadet Programme was superb and I thoroughly enjoyed my training both at college and at sea. Since qualifying I have sailed with North Star as 2nd Mate and I am looking forward to sailing on the newest supply vessel in the fleet."

James Nicolson Deck Officer

"The sponsorship programme that North Star offers is such a great opportunity for me to get the qualifications I need for the job of my dreams. I'm looking forward to being a Deck Officer in a few years time."
